

CPA E-Learning

CPA E-Learning offers the option of self study for students who want the flexibility to study a professional accountancy qualification anytime, anywhere, 24/7 whether at home, at work, in college or on the go....

Griffith College is CPA's E-Learning partner with experienced Academic and IT teams providing dedicated e-learning support mechanisms for students wishing to pursue this convenient mode of learning.

Why study online?

At CPA we appreciate that we all lead busy lives and face many demands on our time. So, when it comes to studying a professional qualification we recognise that flexibility is the key. CPA E-Learning provides the opportunity to gain a recognised professional accountancy qualification in the most convenient and flexible way possible. It gives you the control to study at a pace and a time that suits you.

Availability

From September 2010 CPA E-Learning will offer Management Accounting and Information Systems at F2 level. All P1 subjects will be available from September 2011. Check your eligibility and exemption status.

CPA E-Learning will change how students approach the exams. For many years, student's only options were to take up night time education which may have put increased stresses on their work and personal lives. Now CPA students can choose when they want to study and make the exam preparation fit around their personal and professional lives. Students will be able to maintain pace with the on-site lectures from locations all over Ireland. Students combine the online viewing of lectures with use of a student intranet Moodle. On this facility lecturers maintain discussion boards where students can post queries in relation to issues relating to their course. This way, students living throughout Ireland can expect the same level of responsiveness from our lecturing team as those, in class.

CPA E-Learning gives you 24/7 access to:

- CPA E-Learning Portal
